Mind Britain's Business

With the war on Iraq now degenerating into a guerrilla war which could become the United States new Vietnam Bomber Bush has started sabre-rattling against North Korea. But beware, North Korea is closely tied to China and there is not doubt which side China will support if Korea is attacked. Diplomacy seems to have been sidelined with the appointment of a new Asian advisor to the US national security staff. He is Aaron Friedberg, a "neo-con Republican who has spent the last ten years saying that conflict in East Asia involving China is inevitable. President Bush is rapidly becoming the major threat to world peace and we must hope that his "poodle" Tony Blair, will have the courage to resist Bush's efforts to drag Britain into another conflict. British troops should only ever be used to defend Britain and her interests. Not as mercenaries to boost Blair's ego.
Mind Britain's Business.

Another Waste of Your Money

An independent report into the failings of the National Asylum Support Service (NASS) has been suppressed by the government. Quite what they wish to hide we can only speculate. The NASS is responsible for allocating housing and benefits to asylum seekers and its workload should by now have eased if government claims to have stopped the flood of economic immigrants were true. But the cost to the taxpayer of funding the NASS has risen from £700 million last year to £1.1 billion for this year. Doesn't this tell us something about the war on bogus asylum seekers?

Congratulations

Congratulations are in order to the British National Party for their splendid achievements in the recent council elections. Their campaigning seems to be getting even more professional each time they stand. Congratulations also to Sharon Edwards of the Freedom Party who uniquely managed to get elected both as a councillor and a parish councillor in two separate elections. Electioneering is hard work and normally unrewarding, which makes these victories even sweeter.

Changes

Regular readers will note some small changes in both appearance and content of this issue. Some of these were forced upon us by circumstances which we hope will be temporary, others will be permanent. We hope to do a complete revamp of the magazine in the early part of next year as well as creating our own website. Information about your party or group from both home and abroad is welcome.

Black Crime Wave Hits Britain

A senior police officer has revealed that Black gangsters are spreading their activities throughout Britain and now potentially pose the second biggest threat to British society after international terrorism.

Afro-Caribbean thugs, who already dominate the drug trade in many of Britain's inner cities, are expanding their crime empires into areas as diverse as Somerset and Aberdeen. The gangs, made up of both Jamaican "Yardies" and their British-born counterparts are expanding their drug and vice empires by extreme violence backed up with guns.

In the past nine-months over thirty Jamaican gangsters have been arrested in Aberdeen, Scotland for drug dealing. None of those arrested lived in the area, all were from London. The local police have already established a 230 name database of "crack" dealers who visit the area to do business. West Indian pimps are also bringing prostitutes into Aberdeen from as far away as Birmingham to deal in sex and drugs.

The gangsters have also taken over the drug trade in Sussex and East Anglia.

Detective Chief Superintendent, John Coles, who operates from Scotland Yard where he heads the 160 strong "Operation Trident" team which investigates black on black gun crime, warned, "the problem is not just one for the black community; the white middle classes need to understand that this is a big issue for them as well".

Yardie Thug

Mr Coles fears are supported by the latest risk assessment produced by the National Criminal Intelligence Service (NCIS) which revealed that the use of crack cocaine has increased in terms of both supply and demand far beyond police expectation. A spokesman for the NCIS confirmed that the drug was mainly controlled by gangsters of West Indian origin or descent. "Many pushers are offering free samples of the drug to teenagers with the sole intention of getting them addicted" he said.

Since its inception, just three years ago, the Operation Trident team has compiled a database of over 500 Afro-Caribbean criminals involved in trafficking and dealing crack cocaine in London alone. The major players are Jamaicans and account for 40% of the crimes investigated by the Trident team. The rest are committed by British-born black gangsters.

On average there are around 70 murders a year committed in London by Yardie thugs. Also in one year (2002) the Met Police arrested and charged 200 suspects, seized 130 guns and seized 500 kilos of class A drugs.

Interestingly, Mr Coles revealed that even London-based Asian and Turkish gangs were furnishing the police with information on the Yardies in an effort to destroy the threat of violence posed by Yardie thugs against other ethnic criminals including themselves. In an ominous warning Mr Coles said "The Jamaican criminals are entrepreneurs. They will go anywhere there is a market. Then there is the potential for conflict and shootings. The threat is that we are all going to see it all over the place. It is spreading".

Chief Rabbi Backs British Nationalist Position on Refugees

The religious leader of the majority of Britain's 280,000 Jews has demanded that Britain "shuts its gates" to asylum seekers. The Chief Rabbi, Dr Jonathan Sacks released a statement saying "free wealthy countries were being overwhelmed by the number of asylum applications". Even more controversially, Dr Sacks warned that "multiculturalism is destroying the idea of a British national identity". This is a complete turnaround from his previous position where he had frequently praised the granting of refuge to those fleeing tyranny.

Some left-wing groups have condemned Dr Sacks as being hypocritical, reminding him that many of the Jews now living in Britain arrived as refugees. The criticism has not deterred the Chief Rabbi who in a second statement said, "Multiculturalism has destroyed Britain's national identity and forced immigrants to retreat into their own communities. Asylum cannot be granted to all who seek it; affluent and free countries are, like elite universities, besieged by applicants and cannot admit them all".

Whether Dr Sacks, a lifelong Labour supporter will now be voting for a British nationalist party in the next election remains to be seen.

Gothic Ripples To Cease Publication

The veteran nationalist, Colin Jordan is to cease publishing his newsletter, Gothic Ripples to concentrate instead on writing his autobiography. Mr Jordan intends producing another three issues with the final issue being number 50.

Gothic Ripples was originally published by Arnold Leese in the 1940's. Mr Jordan is now 80 years old and in poor health.

Flemish Office Opens in London

Flemish demands for independence and the right of self-determination for its people took a step forward with the opening in July of a Flemish Representation office in London.

The office, at 1A Cavendish Square, is centrally located and is just a short walk from Bond Street and Oxford Street. The building will also house the Flanders Tourist office and the Flanders Export Promotion Agency. Through the European Union, Flanders has been given full international responsibility to conduct its own foreign policy and has its own Minister-President, Bart Somers, and ministers for Home affairs and Culture, and Economy and foreign policy. For ceremonial and diplomatic services the Flemish office will still be represented by the Belgian embassy.

Our Flemish correspondent told League Sentinel, "We are delighted with the latest expansion. Flemish offices have already been established in The Hague, Berlin and Paris, but an office in London was very important to us".

BNP Member Wins Historic Legal Case

A British National Party electoral candidate, Mr Jay Lee, has won his case for compensation after being expelled from the train driver's union ASLEF because of his political beliefs.

Mr Lee was represented by the newly established BNP legal department headed by the formidable Lee Barnes. First Mr Lee took his case through his union's appeals procedure, and when his appeal to be reinstated was refused he took his case to an Industrial Tribunal.

At the tribunal the union was represented by employment law specialists Thompson's, who briefed John Hendy QC. Despite these big guns ranged against them the BNP team put up a formidable case. After a deliberation the Tribunal found in Mr Lee's favour, condemning ASLEF's action as illegal.

A new hearing will assess the amount of compensation that ASLEF will have to pay to its former member. Normally there is an option of allowing Mr Lee to be reinstated, but it is unlikely that ASLEF will pursue this route.

Batten still managed to come fourth in a five cornered fight. In doing so he beat the well fancied candidate from the Socialist Workers Party electoral front, the Socialist Alliance who only managed to poll 400 votes.

ASLEF: Facing Compensation Claim

The BNP have announced that they intend contesting every region in England in the European elections next year. Following their success in some council elections the BNP feel confident of winning at least two seats in the European parliament.

National Front Poll Well in Tyneside

The National Front surprised many Tynesiders by polling over two and a half thousands votes in the North Tyneside Mayoral elections. The NF candidate, 53-year old Rob Batten faced a horrendous smear campaign orchestrated by the Tyne & Wear Anti-Fascist group and the Anti-Nazi League. Despite this, Mr

x BBC Freeze-Out Nationalist Opinion in Asylum Debate

The recent one day focus on Asylum seekers by the BBC strangely omitted any input by British nationalists. Throughout the day various BBC programmes explored and debated the asylum issue, with Kilroy, Question Time and a Panorama special all devoted to the subject. There were invited guests from various Refugee support groups, politicians Oliver Letwin from the Conservative Party, Simon Hughes from the Lib-Dems, Home Office minister, Beverly Hughes, represented the Labour government but no British nationalists. We have discovered that Simon Darby, a BNP councillor had been invited to join the panel some 12 days before the programmes were due to be broadcast. The invitation was confirmed just 8 days before the broadcast. With just 24 hours to go Mr Darby was told the invitation was withdrawn. Despite the BNP representative being the only person dropped from the discussion panel, the BBC denied that they surrendered to political pressure.

Israeli Double-Standards Over Law of Return

The author is a Palestinian who is living in exile in London waiting for the first opportunity to return to his home in "Free" Palestine. He is active within the Palestinian movement and is regarded as a "clear and present danger" by the Israeli secret service MOSSAD. His activities are constantly monitored by MI5 working on behalf of the Israelis. He would be immediately arrested or even assassinated if he returned to his home in occupied Palestine.

Over the past 50 years, the state of Israel has operated a system where any Jew, in any part of the world has the right to go and live in Israel. The law is called "The Law of Return."

Recent influxes of Jews from Eastern Europe and Russia into Israel have created the need for an expansion of Israeli territory to accommodate the needs of 800,000 newly arrived Jews. The Germans have a word for this expansion, Lebensraum.

- Palestinians have been forcefully removed from their homes and villages bulldozed, to provide land for Jews. This has caused incredible anger amongst the Palestinian people and is a direct cause of increased Palestinian militancy. The United States, Britain and the EU are all aware of the cause and solution, but all support Israel's Law of Return legislation. But Palestinian requests for equal treatment, a right to return for Palestinians illegally expelled by Israel, has been denied. Since 1948 the inhabitants of 530 towns and villages have been expelled by gunpoint. 89% of Israel is based on lands depopulated by Israeli military assaults.

Terrified Into Leaving Their Homes by Israeli Occupation Forces

The 1949 Fourth Geneva Convention (Article 49) specifically prohibits "individual or mass forcible transfers ... regardless of motive." Today, there are 5.2 million Palestinian refugees wanting to return to their homeland.

UN Resolution 194 affirms the right of "every individual to leave and return to his country". This resolution has been reaffirmed by the international community a further 110 times since it was first tabled in December 1948, but still it is blatantly ignored by Israel, the United States and Britain.

Also ignored is the November 1998 UN Resolution 52/644 which gives Palestinians the right to all revenue obtained through the use of their property.

Tens of thousands of Palestinian farmers own land which is occupied and profitably farmed by Israeli settlers, yet no revenue is obtained from this land and the refugees live in enforced poverty.

The Oslo accords and the formation of the Palestinian Authority both supported by the more recent "Roadmap to Peace" introduced by the US, aims to establish a Palestinian state in a small part of the occupied territories. This has caused, perhaps deliberately, widespread confusion amongst Palestinians living in the homelands and refugees scattered around the world. International legal and Middle East experts have proclaimed that with the establishment of the Palestinian state the refugee problem will be resolved. But this is not the case. Israel, a reluctant signatory to the US roadmap has specifically stated that it will not allow the Palestinians "right to return" to apply.

It must also be noted that any agreement between the unelected Palestinian Authority, who incidentally are viewed as Israeli collaborators by many Palestinians, and the US/Israeli government does not and cannot invalidate international law and UN resolutions. The Right to Return is as much a right for Palestinian refugees as the Law of Return is for Jews.

Furthermore, UN resolution 194 which provides for the refugees right to return to their homes, is not invalidated by any agreement surrounding the establishment of a Palestinian state as most of the rightful homes of the refugees are actually in Israel itself.

The Right to Return is Necessary for Justice and political stability in the Middle East.

In most of the Arab countries which house most of the refugees rightly accept them as temporary residents only. This means that they have only limited civil rights. They cannot vote, they cannot take jobs within the civil service. But many of those living as refugees in camps in Jordan, Lebanon, Libya and Syria were born there as were often their fathers. But still they are regarded as temporary and in effect are stateless.

But these hardships are accepted willingly as for most, their sole ambition is to return by right, to the birthplace of their fathers and Grandfathers. Palestine!

The Return of Refugees IS Practically Possible

In the rest of the world, refugees driven from their homes by state terror tend to flee and seek refuge as far away as possible from their homeland. But, so strong is the bond between Palestinians and their lands that 88 % still live within 100 miles of their former homes.

Why should the refugees not return to their homes? Throughout Europe individual countries are working to repatriate refugees back to Bosnia, Albania, Kosovo and Somalia. A long standing Israeli argument, backed by their US co-religionists is that the return of Palestinian refugees is not practically possible, because Israel is only a small country and could not accept an influx of 5 million refugees. This argument is a smokescreen to hide the truth.

In my homeland, 78 % of Jewish Israelis are concentrated in just 15 % of the country. Most Jews live in or near the major cities. The rural areas of the country are sparsely populated with just 150,000 Jews populating 75 % of the country.

Overall, the current population density of 85 % of Israel is just 82 persons per square mile. If all 5 million displaced Palestinians were allowed to return to their homeland tomorrow, the population to land ration would be raised only minimally. This is in the long-term interest of Israel, the United States and my people.

"Whatever it Takes": Palestinian Youth Fights Israeli Occupation

Readers of League Sentinel may wonder why I am writing this article for a European nationalist magazine but, I ask you to consider the following ... A foreign minority occupies the majority's homeland. Over a remarkably short period of time the minority obliterates the majority's culture, religion and eventually if not stopped its national identity. Do you not recognise this as being Britain today? Your land, like my land has become occupied. You will become second-class citizens in your own land. This is the present plight of the Palestinian people and I feel sure you can see the danger to yourselves. Like you, the Palestinians are determined to win their freedom and recover their country. Justice will prevail. But until it does we fight on.

In Memoriam

RUDOLF HESS

17th August 1987

Imprisoned for 40 years, his only crime was to attempt to bring about peace between European brothers. In the afternoon of the 17th of August 1987, Rudolf Hess was murdered in the grounds of Spandau prison, Berlin.

The following words are taken from a statement made by Hess at his trial in 1947.

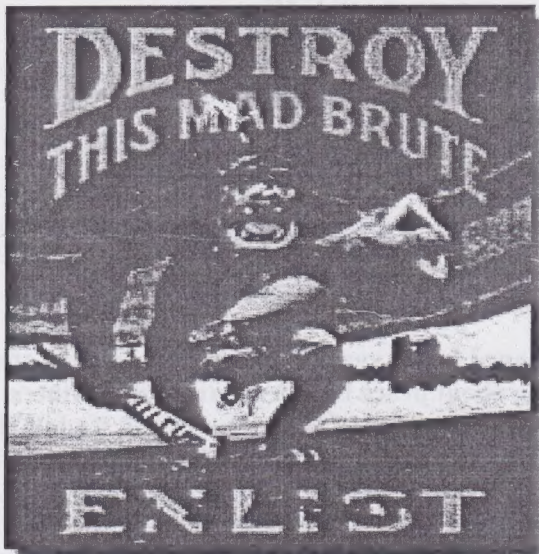

"Even if I could I would not erase this time from my existence. I am happy to know that I have done my duty towards my people, my duty as a German, as a National Socialist, as a loyal follower of the Fuhrer. I REGRET NOTHING. If I were to begin all over again, I would act as I did, even if I knew that a funeral pyre was waiting at the end for my immolation. Regardless of what people do, I will one day stand before the judgement seat of the Eternal, I will justify myself to him, AND I KNOW HE WILL EXONORATE ME".

TRUTH is the First Casualty of War

Lies and deceit play their part in every war as much as bombs and bullets. In WW1 the allies produced a staggering amount of anti-German propaganda featuring the "Hun" committing atrocities against the civilian population of occupied countries. Attempts to justify WW2 often centred on the Holocaust. Six million Jews were murdered we were told, their bodies being rendered into bars of soap and their skin fashioned into lampshades. All lies!

Only in the aftermath of war does truth normally emerge. The propaganda war during the 1914 -18 conflict was quite basic. Lurid tales of the bodies of Belgian babies being waved about on the end of the Hun's bayonet and the mass rape of the female population of countries occupied by the "Hun" proved to be propaganda lies. In truth, the "Hun" of WW1 proved no better and no worse an occupier than the allies during their periods of occupation.

WW1: The "Hun" on the rampage

During the Second World War, Britain's main "dirty tricks" propaganda agency was the Political Warfare Executive (PWE), a unit of the British Foreign Office. This psychological warfare agency produced propaganda designed to influence neutral Arab countries. Examples of this were claims that Adolf Hitler hated Arabs as well as Jews. That German soldiers were using Mosques as brothels in Axis occupied Tripoli, and an even more bizarre claim that the Germans were digging up Muslim bodies from cemeteries and removing burial shrouds from corpses for recycling into goods for the German homeland. All lies!

In the aftermath of WW2 some of the more lurid claims about the Holocaust and the fate of concentration camp victims were quickly dispelled. Scientists proved that a human corpse could not be rendered into soap, and despite offers of huge rewards no one has ever produced a lampshade made from the skin of a concentration camp prisoner. In 1990, forty-five years after the end of WW2 the Polish government formally amended the number of Holocaust deaths downwards from the legendary six million to three and a half million. Earlier this year the Auschwitz museum in Poland admitted that a building shown to tourists as an "original gas chamber" was in fact a "reconstruction". They had been lying for almost 50 years.

Auschwitz: "Reconstructed" Gas Chambers

Just a few weeks ago, in July, the Romanian government's Public Information Ministry issued a formal denial that there had been any Holocaust in Romania during the war. This finally put paid to the lie that during 1940 -45 when Romania was governed by the pro-Nazi, Marshal Ion Antonescu, hundreds of thousands of Jews were massacred on Romanian soil.

Historians, when allowed, continue to investigate the mountain of lies that have been produced about this period of history.

The Labour government of Tony Blair has done its utmost to continue the tradition of lies and deceit in justifying the sacrifice of British lives in Iraq.

Although the war is not yet over, evidence is already emerging that lies were told to the British public to justify Britain taking up arms against Iraq. Perhaps the most potent of these lies revolves around Iraq's alleged Weapons of Mass Destruction.

Allegations that Saddam Hussein's regime had nuclear and/or biological weapons were investigated by experts from the United Nations led by Hans Blix. After threats of military action the Iraqi government finally agreed to unrestricted access for the weapons inspectors. Mr Blix and his team spent several months searching Iraq for chemical, biological and nuclear weapons but none were found. Unknown to Mr Blix the United States had already decided that whatever the outcome of the inspections a war would be ranged against Iraq. The decision was taken long before a single weapons inspector ever set foot in Iraq. At this moment in time we do not know if Tony Blair was part of the conspiracy to mount an attack, but his subsequent actions would suggest that he was a co-conspirator with George Bush to wage an illegal war on the Iraqi people.

TRUTH is the First Casualty of War ... Continued

With public opinion beginning to reject Blair's enthusiasm for a war in Iraq and even members of his own government questioning the justification for a war, Blair grasped at any straw, any crumb of "evidence" that would help his case.

Salvation came, or so he thought, when documents indicating that Iraq had tried to buy weapons grade uranium from the West African country Niger. In the US the state department also used the documents to support its case that Iraq was lying about its weapons programme.

The documents soon turned out to be forgeries which had been filtered by the Israeli MOSSAD through the Italian and French intelligence services. But instead of admitting that he was wrong about Iraq's nuclear weapons Blair continued the lie.

The next, and potentially most damaging statement from the British Prime minister came on September 24th 2002 when he told the House of Commons that "Iraq has chemical and biological weapons, that Saddam has continued to produce them, that he has existing and active military plans for the use of chemical and biological weapons, which could be activated within 45 minutes".

Blair was lying! And he nearly got away with it!

Now, six months after the war on Iraq began, it has emerged that immediately preceding, and in the very early days of the hostilities, a US covert operations team had infiltrated Iraq to plant sufficient "evidence" of weapons of mass destruction (WMD's) to justify the war.

The information was provided by a serving member of the US Department of Defence special debriefing team, Miss Nelda Rogers. Twenty-eight year old Miss Rogers was second in command of the debriefing team that worked as part of the DOD's special intelligence office.

Miss Rogers was working in Germany debriefing servicemen and CIA operatives returning from intelligence work in Iraq when she learned of the plot which was manned by a special covert operations team comprising of ex-military personnel controlled by the CIA but paid for by the US Department of Agriculture to hide the existence of the specialist team. This procedure of using a "tame" "department's budget to hide or disguise sensitive operations is apparently commonplace.

Whether or not the team had been successful in their mission was unknown as they had all been killed in Baghdad, ironically by "friendly" fire. Miss Rogers's revelations were extremely detailed. She even disclosed the CIA was agency responsible for extracting the covert team and that they had an unmarked aircraft ready to fly the team safely out of the area. Unfortunately for them (and Mr Blair) the US Army arrived in the area and the extraction was cancelled. A short time later all of the team members were killed.

On the 20th of March, Blair announced the outbreak of war in a broadcast to the British people.

"Tonight, British servicemen and women are engaged from air, land and sea. Their mission is to remove Saddam Hussein from power, and disarm Iraq of its weapons of mass destruction."

Did British heroes die in an illegal war promoted by a lying Prime Minister?

With these words Blair took Britain into an illegal war against a nation that posed no threat to Britain or its interests.

With these words Blair sacrificed the lives of over forty British servicemen.

Just a few days later, on the 25th of March, with Allied troops well into Iraq and no evidence of nuclear, chemical or biological weapons being possessed by Iraqi forces, Blair gave a press conference in London. He told a sceptical press ...

"Our aim remains as has been stated: to remove Saddam as the route to disarming Iraq of its weapons of mass destruction"

The war is not over yet but already the lies of Tony Blair and his Labour colleagues have surpassed those constructed about the Hun in WW1 and the bars of soap of WW2. The blood of forty-three British service personnel are on the hands of Tony Blair, and Britons should never forget or forgive that.

Argentina

Revisionist Wins Harassment Case Against Wiesenthal Centre

Mr Hector Buela, of San Luis, Argentina won an important victory when a judge dismissed charges against him of inciting hatred against minorities by selling German wartime propaganda films and post-war revisionist videos.

The charges had been brought against Mr Buela and his wife Erika by the Simon Wiesenthal Centre in Buenos Aires, who alleged that Mr Buela was inciting hatred by selling these items in his shop.

The Wiesenthal Centre, which has been described as an immensely powerful business empire in Argentina then conspired with Channel 13 television to film the arrest of Mr Buela and his wife live. Hector Buela was arrested at his shop whilst his wife was arrested as she cooked dinner for their two young children at the family home.

Channel 13 television, which is privately owned by a Jewish family, seemed to delight in close-ups of the Buela's children being dragged from their mother as she was arrested.

The case was presented as a Crime of Opinion with the prosecution being undertaken by the Wiesenthal Centre themselves. After hearing a spirited defence by Human Rights Attorney, Miguel Kayat, who was acting free of charge, the Federal Judge dismissed the charges as "not proven".

Under Argentinean law the Buela's are now allowed to sue the Simon Wiesenthal Centre, and all those that assisted them including the television company for compensation. The Federal Authorities must also now prosecute the complainants under criminal law for malicious prosecution.

Flanders

Vlaams Blok Increase Vote

Vlaams Blok confirmed that it is the fastest growing party in Flanders by increasing its share of the vote in the recent Federal elections.

The VB increased its share of the vote in the Dutch-speaking Northern half of Belgium from 15.3% to 18% increasing their seats in the Federal Chamber of Representatives from 15 to 18. Vlaams Blok campaigned for an independent Flemish nation, legal protection of Flemish identity and culture and a halt to immigration.

The next elections in Belgium will be for control of the regional parliaments in 2004.

Belgium's left-wing government have agreed to change the country's war crimes legislation after intense pressure from Israel and its political puppet, the United States.

Under existing legislation the Israeli Prime Minister, Ariel Sharon was facing trial for war crimes for his part in the massacre's that took place in the Sabra and Chatila refugee camps in Lebanon in 1982. In the past few weeks new complaints were laid before Belgian courts against George Bush and Tony Blair for their activities in Iraq.

The US retaliated by ordering a freeze on $350 million funding for new NATO buildings in Belgium and threatened to use its influence to move the NATO HQ out of the country unless the war crimes law was scrapped or altered dramatically.

Powerful Israeli and US citizens threatened to bankrupt the Antwerp diamond trade by moving the market to another unspecified country.

The new war crimes law will only apply to crimes committed within the last 10 years, where the victim is Belgian, the alleged criminal is Belgian and where the country in which the alleged crimes were committed has no war crimes legislation of its own. Those who wish to lay complaints in the Belgian courts must have lived in Belgium for at least three years.

Germany

Jewish Leader Arrested in Drugs and Prostitution Investigation

The aptly titled, Vice-president of the Central Council of Jews in Germany, Michel Friedman has been arrested by officers from the Federal police on suspicion of involvement in a Ukrainian human smuggling ring which smuggled hundreds of young girls into Germany to work as prostitutes.

Friedman, who is also the president of the European Jewish Congress, was arrested at his Frankfurt home. A search of his home and office revealed three empty packets in which traces of cocaine were found. A sample of his hair was forcibly taken to test to establish if the wealthy businessman had been using the drug himself. High profile members of Germany's Jewish community, fearful that the entire community might be dragged into the scandal are to decide Friedman's political future in the next few weeks. One Jewish leader has been extensively quoted as stating "we must decide now if Friedman is a suitable representative of our community. Public opinion will want to put all of the Jews in the dock with Friedman, and we must not let this happen". Mr Friedman spent much of his spare time lecturing schoolchildren on their responsibility to maintain high personal standards.

Our German correspondent told us, "it looks as if Germany's Jews will abandon Friedman to his fate but he will not be alone in the dock. Several well known sports and media personalities are being linked with the drugs and prostitution ring as well as a senior member of a major political party".

The decision to maintain the historical accuracy of the list is supported by the current mayor, a social democrat, but has been attacked by the extreme left and members of the local Jewish community.

Spain

Pro-Franco Book Becomes Best Seller

Pio Moa, a former Communist who fought in the International Brigade during the Spanish civil war has written a bestselling book praising Franco's fascists for saving Spain from Communist revolution. The book, The Myths of the Civil War has outraged the Spanish left as it carefully examines and then debunks much of the mythology that has been encouraged to develop around the International Brigade.

Far from being a band of idealistic heroes who went to Spain to fight Fascism, Moa remembers them "as a bunch of lawless anti-Spanish communists".

Of General Francisco Franco Moa says, "Franco saved Spain from a traumatic revolution ... his regime saved it from involvement in the world war ... modernised society and established the conditions for a stable democracy."

Israel Attempts to Censor the BBC

Israel has responded to critical reporting of its actions in the occupied territories by the BBC, and the showing of a film detailing its nuclear weapons capabilities, by banning all official contact with the broadcasting company. The move is reminiscent of the type of actions taken by the cold-war Soviet block, or a spoilt child used to having its own way.

The decision to ostracise the BBC announced by the Israeli director of the Israeli government press office means that no longer will Israel provide official spokesman for BBC interviews, and there will be visa restrictions placed on BBC news teams working in Israel. Sensitive areas of the occupied territories, such as Gaza and the West Bank, which require special permission to pass through Israel military checkpoints, will be off-limits to BBC reporters. A decision to forcibly expel all BBC staff has been put on hold to see if the BBC will capitulate to Israeli demands to be allowed to censor future BBC coverage from and about the region.

Israeli officials justified the decision by accusing the BBC of attempting to demonise the country, adding that the decision had the full backing of both the Israeli Prime Minister's office and the Foreign Office.

The Israeli government press office spokesman, Daniel Seaman also hinted that Israel was not satisfied that Britain was obeying the diktat "Israel must only be praised ... never criticised". Mr Seaman stated "we see the well known pro-Arab touch of the British Foreign Office and the traditional anti-Semitism of parts of Britain's establishment in the way they are acting against us". A BBC employee told League Sentinel "the BBC was expecting a hostile reaction from Israel following the corporation's refusal to withdraw the programme Israel's Secret Weapon".

The programme had been widely advertised using the following questions on screen.

Which country in the Middle East has undeclared nuclear weapons?

Which country in the Middle East has undeclared biological and chemical weapons capabilities?

Which country in the Middle East has had no outside inspections?

Which country jailed its nuclear whistleblower for 18 years?

ISRAEL

This explosive programme was scheduled to be shown at the primetime slot on the 16th of March but was suddenly withdrawn on the day just hours before it was due to be shown. Despite BBC denials that they had been subject to pressure to cancel the showing permanently we are informed that there was indeed intense pressure from both the Israeli government and their agents within the British government. Suddenly the programme was shown, unannounced at 11.20pm the following day.

The programme was indeed embarrassing. It revealed that since Israeli "whistleblower" Mordechai Vanunu told the world that Israel had developed a secret nuclear weapons plant at Dimona in the Negev desert, the plant had produced enough plutonium for up to 200 nuclear weapons. The programme also noted that Israel has always denied having such weapons but refuses to allow international inspection of the Dimona facility and refuses to sign the international nuclear non-proliferation treaty. All without threat of action from the United States.

A more embarrassing claim was made by Avner Cohen, an Israeli writer now living in self-imposed exile in the US, who described the existence of a secret understanding between the US and Israel that Washington would turn a blind eye to Israel's nuclear programme provided it kept a low profile and did not carry out nuclear tests. The programme concluded by exposing the double-standards between the treatment of Iraq and Israel concerning weapons inspections.

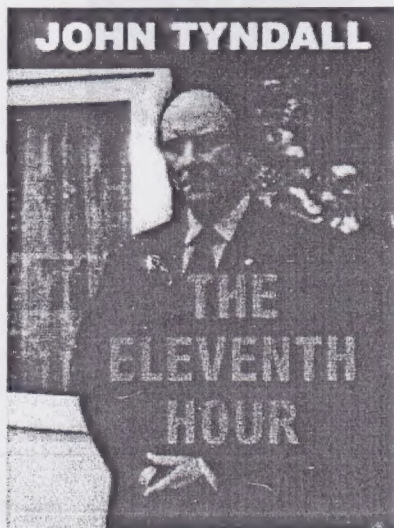

The Murder of Rachel Corrie

Extensive coverage by the BBC of the murder of American peace activist, Rachel Corrie, crushed to death by an Israeli army bulldozer and the later exoneration of the army driver has also caused the bandit state great embarrassment. Richard Sambrook, Director of BBC News has defended the BBC's coverage of the Middle East, but in the corridors of power moves to appease Israel are already being discussed.

John Tyndall Faces Expulsion Threat

The veteran nationalist and former Chairman of the British National Party, John Tyndall faces expulsion from the party that he helped found in 1982

Mr Tyndall has been summoned to a disciplinary hearing to answer seven charges relating to alleged attempts to undermine the leadership and destabilise the party.

A recent members bulletin claims that if found guilty of the offences Mr Tyndall could face expulsion and proscription. Since Mr Tyndall was replaced as Chairman in 1999 by Nick Griffin, he has criticised the new leadership on several issues. This led to a retaliatory ban by the leadership on selling Mr Tyndall's monthly magazine Spearhead at BNP gatherings. At the time this move seemed vindictive by some members as Spearhead whilst criticising the leadership and some of their tactics always gave full support to the BNP as an organisation. Given the BNP's astonishing electoral successes since Nick Griffin became chairman the reaction of members is hard to gauge if Mr Tyndall is, as expected, expelled.

"This could become another Night of the Long Knives"

One prominent John Tyndall supporter who holds a high profile position within the BNP told League Sentinel "If JT is expelled it will only be a matter of time before all those who are regarded as Tyndall supporters will be purged from the party. It will be like a non-violent, Night of the Long Knives."

In addition to expulsion, the call for proscribing Mr Tyndall is clearly aimed at preventing BNP branches from inviting him to address meetings as a guest speaker. This would effectively circumvent any future plans that Mr Tyndall might have had to gain support from grass-root members to seek re-entry into the party and a new leadership challenge.

However, enforcing such a ban could be difficult as Mr Tyndall is an extremely professional and popular speaker who has recently addressed branches in BNP powerbases such as Burnley, where the party has eight councillors, and Halifax where they have two Councillors.

Robert Edwards, a former member of Mosley's Union Movement, has carefully researched the history of British fascism in the inter-war years and has produced a book described by one major patriotic distributor as "well-written and informative". This book, "Sir Oswald Mosley and the British Union of Fascists" [a pictorial history of the Blackshirt movement], examines the major events of the BUF with precision and directness.

Published by League Enterprises in quality A4 size with a laminated cover, packed with photos complementing the riveting text, this book stands as an example of what can be achieved. Warning: it should not be confused with a similar inferior quality American publication by James K. Warner.
